Press Release
7th May 2020

AGHealth's product Efemia bladder support approved for NHS prescription

We are proud to announce that the Efemia Bladder Support will be available via NHS prescription as of April 2020. Users as well as healthcare entities in the UK have shown a strong interest in Efemia, and the agreement with NHS England constitutes the next important step as clinicians will be able to prescribe the product to their patients.

“We are so happy working with AGH and it is satisfying that Efemia Bladder Support, Invent Medic's first product, has been approved for prescription with cost coverage in this large and influential European market. This makes the product much more available for women in need of a simple, effective and non-surgical solution for SUI, says Invent Medic's CEO Karin Bryder. Invent Medic owns and manufactures Efemia.

“Our team is incredibly happy to announce that Efemia bladder support is now available on NHS prescription. We are proud that we can continue to make available life changing and innovative products to as many women as possible. Offering a reusable, clinically proven and comfortable alternative to pads and older style vaginal inserts is a major step forward for women who may suffer with Stress Urinary Incontinence,” says Alexander Fisher, Managing Director, Advanced Global Health Ltd.

About AGHealth

Advanced Global Health (AGHealth) is a women's health medical technology company focused on identifying, launching and selling innovative products that bring improvements to secondary care clinicians and patients. We advise, assist with development and primarily distribute novel women's health products across the UK. We strongly believe that the diffusion of innovative products throughout the NHS will enable rapid improvements in clinical outcomes and diagnostics, whilst offering short and long-term cost savings. We sell market leading products including the AmniSure Rupture of Membrane test, PartoSure Preterm Labour test, Dilapan Osmotic Dilator for Induction of Labour and 4DryField. Our team is dedicated to working with forward thinking manufacturing partners to improve women's health through innovation.
